VETS OF BOTH WARS PARADE WITH LEGION

Doughboys, GI's To Spend 12 Hours Tramping Down N. Y.'s 5th Avenue.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 30—American Legion comrades, the greying ex-Doughboys and the younger, slimmer former GI's, paraded up the long and sunlit expanse of Fifth avenue today as hundreds of thousands of spectators paid tumultuous tribute to the men of two World Wars.

An estimated 65,000 were lined up for the Legion's climatic parade, expected to last more than 12 hours over a 2½ mile route 59 blocks long.

General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, who received a tumultuous welcome from the convention, coupled his endorsement of universal military training with a statement that "I do not want to be understood as seeing a global war as an immediate threat.

"It is fully as important to prevent blind hysteria and fear from influencing us as it is to look facts soberly in the face and thus develop logical conclusions from the survey," he declared.

"None Can Provoke War"

The wartime supreme commander and present chief of staff said "no great nation is today in position deliberately to provoke a long and exhausting conflict with any hope of gain."

Eisenhower described his address as "something of an official farewell" since it was probably his last public appearance as chief of staff before assuming the presidency of Columbia university in January.

Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz asked the Legion to act "as sentinels to see that no one branch of the armed forces is permitted to decline to the point where it cannot carry out its share of responsibility for national security."

Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, commanding general of the Army Air Forces, who also endorsed universal military training, expressed concern about the Air Forces' replacement requirements.

The sober warning of military and political leaders will be followed today by the great parade of Legionnaires up Fifth avenue.

Weather Ideal

Ideal weather was promised for the marchers who begin to tramp through mid-Manhattan at 8:30 a. m. and continue for at least 12 hours.

The mightiest parade ever staged by the Legion, at its 1937 convention here, lasted for 16 hours but most units marched four abreast at that time while today's arrangements call for the doughboys to march 12 to a line.

Twelve P-80 jet planes and 18 B-29 Superfortresses will furnish a "cover" for the marchers.

The Legion's 29th convention concludes tomorrow when the 3,597 delegates return to serious business, including election of officers for the next year and consideration of 800 resolutions incorporated in reports of the child-welfare, rehabilitation, Americanism, foreign relations, labor, internal organization, employment and other committees.

Housing Fight Promised

Adherents of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill promised a fight on the convention floor against the veterans' housing committee expected disapproval of the measure.

The committee is to vote today on its official stand on the bill.

Maneuverings in the race for 1947-48 national commander continued at a feverish pace yesterday but adherents of James F. O'Neil of Manchester, N. H., said their candidate was far in front, claiming the big delegations from New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and California.

O'Neil was assailed by his opponents as the candidate of the Legion's "Kingmakers." Supporters of S. Perry Brown of Beaumont, Tex., and Martin Coffey of Middletown, O., insisted their candidates had an excellent chance of topping O'Neil in the contest for delegates.

Ohio Makes Best Show In Legion Parade

By The United Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 30—In the American Legion parade today, the most pretentious show of all was made by Ohio. Leading the long Ohio section of the parade was Gov. Thomas J. Herbert, who took a place in the reviewing stand.

The Ohio procession included the Lancaster post veterans of the 1917-18 fighting in France; the Massillon drum and bugle corps; the Steubenville post, Canton post No. 5 drum and bugle corps, the Portage post No. 496 of Kent, O., the silver-helmeted Toledo ladies fife and drum corps.

A big hand was received by the smartly playing drum and bugle corps of Elyria, O., post No. 42. They wore cream colored suits, yellow shakos.

"TWO GREAT WORLD CAMPS" says Eisenhower. General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, U. S. Army chief of staff, addresses the 29th annual Legion convention in New York's Madison Square Garden, warning that "the world comprises two great camps—grouped on one side around dictatorships and on the other, democracy." Claiming conflicting theories can exist peacefully, "Ike" urged preparedness "as long as deliberate aggressions against rights of men are part of the international picture." (International Photo.)

RUSS RATIFY FIVE TREATIES

War Now Over for Bulgaria, Finland, Hungary, Italy and Romania.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 30 — Russian ratification of peace treaties with five Axis satellites cleared the way today for a formal ending of hostilities for Bulgaria, Finland, Hungary, Italy and Romania.

The Moscow radio announced unexpectedly last night that the presidium of the supreme Soviet had ratified the five treaties, signed in Paris last Feb. 10.

Russia was the last of the four major powers to ratify and a British official said Endrei Y. Vishinsky, deputy Soviet foreign minister, had promised that Russia would agree to deposit the instruments of ratification at "an early date," thus completing action and making the treaties effective. The instruments of ratification for the Italian treaty must be deposited at Paris, the others at Moscow.

3 Treaties Remain

Still to be drafted are treaties for Austria, Germany and Japan.

By the terms of the satellite treaties, Russia stands to gain $900,000,000 in reparations, the only major power to claim such payments. She gets $300,000,000 each from Romania and Finland, $200,000,000 from Hungary and $100,000,000 from Italy.

From Romania, Russia takes the eastern border province of Bessarabia; and from Finland she takes the northern port and province of Petsamo and a 50-year lease on Perkkala-udd for a naval base.

Must Withdraw Troops

Britain and the United States are required to withdraw their troops from Italy within 90 days and Russians troops must pull out of Bulgaria in a like period, but the treaties give Russia the right to keep soldiers in Hungary and Romania so long as is necessary to protect communications to occupied Austria.

The reaction in most European capitals was one of relief that now the first part of the peace-making job was done. Some sources felt, however, that Russian ratification—coming only a few days after approval was rushed through the parliaments of Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary—heralded an attempt to facilitate the admission of eastern European countries into the United Nations, perhaps when the United Nations assembly meets next month.

Fewer New Strikes Reported Last Month

By The United Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—The nation had fewer new strikes during July—last full month before the Taft-Hartley law became effective—than in any month since February, the labor department reported today.

Even then, however, the walkouts cost 4,200,000 working days, third highest monthly loss for the year.

There were 300 strikes in July involving 500,000 workers. Stoppages in the soft coal and maritime industries, the department said, were chiefly responsible for the high total of strike idleness.

School Workshop Disapproves Student Fear and Punishment

By ELAINE BALLINGER

Sessions of the five-day Marion county schools workshop program here this week were climaxed Friday afternoon with a court-school relationship discussion directed by Judge Joseph Lady of the Hardin county probate court, Kenton. Approximately 130 were present for this final session of the workshop in the Sunday school room of First Presbyterian church. Guests included Judge Edward Ruzzo of the Marion county probate and juvenile court, Mrs. Ella Thibaut, county probation officer, and Marion Apple, juvenile clerk.

The week-long program arranged by D. T. Mills, county superintendent of schools, for teachers of Marion and Marion county, included two general sessions Monday and Tuesday nights at the church, and the morning and afternoon workshop sessions the three following days at Hotel Harding and at the church. A group of specialists in the fields of education and of juvenile research participated. Friday morning, a roundup session at the church elaborated a summary of the general sessions and sectional meetings drawn up by the group of consultants in a special meeting the night before.

STORM KNOCKS OUT PROGRAM

Wind and Rain at Cleveland Causes Posiponement of Day's Events.

BULLETIN
By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 30—The first day's program at the National Air Races was canceled shortly after 1 p. m. today because of heavy thunderstorms.

Fred C. Crawford, president of the air races, said that tickets held for today will be honored for Sunday, but must be exchanged for tickets for tomorrow's program.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 30—A heavy rainstorm accompanied by high winds struck municipal airport today less than an hour before the start of the first day's program at the National Air Races.

The rain reduced ground visibility to about 800 yards. From the press box, it was not possible to see the dozens of valuable racing planes parked near the end of the grandstand.

The weather bureau said this morning's thunderstorm would be followed by another one in the afternoon or evening.

Wind gusts ranges between 30 and 40 miles an hour during the storm, but were expected to drop to 10 or 15 miles an hour.

If the weather forces a postponement, the entire day's program will be set back to Tuesday.

Some Damage Seen

Hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of racing planes sat on the field in readiness for the start of the day's events. There was a possibility that some of the smaller planes might be damaged by the high winds.

If low visibility persists through the day, it will create a considerable problem for the Bendix racers, who left Van Nuys, Calif., for the 2,050 mile dash to Cleveland $25,000 in prizes.

About 80 planes, including Air Force jet-fighters which will compete in special events, were at Cleveland's big municipal airport. Another 18 speedsters were at Van Nuys, Calif., for the 2,050-mile dash to this city, where their arrival will highlight the first day's program.

$125,000 in Prizes

Backers of the three-day show will distribute $125,000 in prize money, with the top award of $16,000 going to the winner of Monday's 300-mile Thompson trophy classic. Last year's winner averaged 373 mph.

Today's feature races, starting some time after noon, include a race for hand-built midget planes weighing 500 pounds; a 75-mile race for women pilots flying advanced trainers on a 15-mile course, and a special race for P-51 Mustangs. Last year's Halle winner averaged 200.5 miles an hour.

Soaring, acrobatics, comedy flying, and demonstrations by Air Force, Navy and Marine pilots were scheduled between races.

The big stands will seat 76,000 persons, but officials were not expecting a sellout for the first day.

No Records Seen

There was some doubt whether last year's record speeds can be exceeded this year, with the Thompson course, which will be used also for the women's race and the special race for converted fighter plane types, only half as long.

A year ago the big planes had two 10-mile stretches on each lap. This has been cut to two five-mile straightaways and two legs of about 2½ miles. Turns will be coming up quickly at speeds approaching 400 miles an hour.

This year's qualifiers for the Thompson were several miles an hour slower than last year. However, two big converted Navy fighters, with 2,500-horsepower engines, edged over the 400-miles an hour mark. The slowest among the 12 Thompson qualifiers averaged 353 mph.

"McMillen Day" Plans For Sept. 10 Canceled

Officials of McMillen Feed Mills today announced that plans for the second annual McMillen Day to have been held on Wednesday, Sept. 10 at their Marion plant have been canceled. The plant has been closed since Aug. 21 due to a strike.

Mr. McMillen, in commenting on the cancelation said: "It is regrettable that we have to call off the extensive plans we have made for entertaining our dealers with this annual barbecue luncheon and program, as it is an event that all of our dealers look forward to attending, but in lieu of the present shutdown, we feel it advisable to abandon the event at this time."

Plenty of Entertainment Near Home for Holiday Observance

With major industries halting production, shops and offices closing and numerous residents planning for the final outing of the summer, Marion prepares to observe Labor Day.

For many it will be a three-day weekend meaning a trip to the summer cottage or to visit friends. To others who avoid the heavy traffic on the highways, it means a quiet weekend at home. To the youngsters outside of Marion it means the last reprieve from school days starting Tuesday in the county schools.

Variety of Entertainment

For Marionites who choose to stay in or around the home town over Labor Day there will be plenty of varied entertainment. Baseball fans will get a full bill as the Cubs entertain the Lima club for a doubleheader Sunday afternoon and evening and the second game of a home and home series at 8 p. m. Labor Day at Lincoln park.

Full programs with special features are scheduled at all Marion theaters. Roller skating will attract many to Crystal Lake park pavilion and the Hy-Way Rollarena and dancing at Secretarium park will provide entertainment for others.

Sport for Golfers

Both the Marion Country club and the Mar-O-Del golf course are expected to see plenty of action as the holiday golfers get in a two-day lick. In addition, final qualifying rounds in the county golf tournament opening Tuesday are expected to add to the number on the courses.

Swimming pools in the area will do a big business if the weatherman smiles, as scores of youngsters take their last swim before picking up the text books. Many area pools close shortly after Labor Day as the holiday unofficially draws the summer season to a close. Parks here and in neighboring communities, Upper Sandusky, Bucyrus, Marysville and Galion may attract numbers of picnickers.

Two Nearby Events

In other towns, Labor Day will bring a special race program in Galion starting at 10 and featuring a parade, athletic contests, airplane show, concluding in the evening with fireworks in Heise park.

At the Walton farm near Mt. Victory thousands are expected to attend the finals in the Leafy Oak National Coon Dog trials which bring baying hounds from all over the United States to "bark a tree". The entry list for the event includes 439 coon chasers.

Of national interest and which will draw many area residents are the National Air Races at Cleveland Monday slated to draw thousands of spectators.

Sunshine and Heat Foreseen for U. S. Through Labor Day

By The Associated Press

Summer's final extended holiday started today with a promise from the weather bureau of mid-summer temperatures and sunny skies for most of the nation through Labor day.

There will be some rainfall in parts of the country during the next three days, the weather bureau said in a nation-wide forecast for the holiday weekend.

From the Rockies to the Appalachians, temperatures will range into the 80's, with considerable sunshine. However cooler weather was moving into the northern plains and parts of the Great Lakes region.

Showers were indicated in Florida and along the Gulf coast, but temperature will be normal. Rain also was predicted in the Atlantic states from New England to northern Virginia tomorrow.

Temperatures climbed to above the 100 mark yesterday in Oklahoma City and Kansas City, and were in the 90's in Iowa, Missouri and Nebraska. The coolest spot on the nation's weather map was Duluth, Minn., with a maximum of 67.

Death Brought to Ohio Baby by Toy Balloon

By The Associated Press

GALLIPOLIS, O., Aug. 30—A toy rubber balloon left within the reach of a six-month-old baby today was blamed for the child's death.

Howard Thomas Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Belden Davis of nearby Patriot, was found dead in his crib yesterday, a piece of the balloon in his throat.

H. N. Foster, acting Gallia county coroner, said the child apparently had burst the balloon and put a piece of the rubber in his mouth.

MINOR MISHAP MARS TAKEOFF

Plane Drops Fuel Tank on Runway, Narrowing Chance To Beat Favorite.

By The Associated Press

VAN NUYS, Calif., Aug. 30—The $25,000 Bendix trophy race got away to a crowd-chilling start today and the $20,000 winner-take-all match between Paul Mantz and Glenn McCarthy, Houston, Tex., oil man, was in jeopardy almost before it started.

McCarthy and Mantz, veteran speed king and winner of the event a year ago, posted $10,000 apiece on the Cleveland finish of the oil man's souped-up P-51, piloted by James Rubel of Houston, and Mantz' P-51.

Rubel was roaring down the runway when he lost his starboard (right) auxiliary gas tank. He quickly got into the air, the plane pulling noticeably to port. But he straightened it out and headed east, anyway.

His backers said later that he still had 1,440 gallons left, despite the loss of the 165-gallon tank, and could reach Cleveland with luck on 1,400 gallons.

Mantz Conceded Edge

But the swashbuckling, colorful Mantz, already a favorite to retain his title, was conceded an even greater edge as a result of the mishap.

The tank skidded across the runway and caught fire, flames roaring high as the crowd of 5,000 or so gasped. Fire equipment rolled at top speed to the scene, poured chemicals on the blaze and hauled the still steaming tank off the runway. Takeoffs went on with only slight delay.

Edmund Lunken of Cincinnati, O., delayed his takeoff slightly due to fuel line trouble, but finally took off. Observers noted, however, that he appeared to be dripping gas as he got into the air.

Pretty June Page Hlavacek, wartime WASP from Wilmette, Ill., sent the event off to a flying, but early start.

Anxious to get to Cleveland, O., to participate in another event of the national Air Races today, Mrs. Hlavacek received permission from the other pilots to depart during the night. Her plane took off at 4:36.15 a. m. (Pacific Standard time). Officials at Metropolitan airport reported favorable tail winds all the way to Cleveland.

Trophy Worth $25,000

The trophy and awards total $25,000. The winner is figured on an elapsed time basis.

Maj. Clay Albright of El Reno, Okla., flying the first of four Army P-80 jet planes making the trip but not in competition with the reciprocal engines, was off at 6:35 a. m.

William F. Eddy of La Jolla, Calif., who finished fourth in last year's race, was away at 7:01 a. m.

William P. Lear, 18-year-old North Hollywood pilot, whose gasoline was furnished by Milton Reynolds, who sponsored the round-the-world flight of the A-26 bombshell, was off at 7:07 a. m. His plane bore the legend "Little Bombshell."

Bruce A. Gimbel of Greenwich, Conn., flying the P-51 in which Jacqueline Cochran finished second a year ago, was off at 7:22½, without incident. Miss Cochran, after debating almost to the last minute whether to fly the craft herself, finally decided to turn the controls over to Gimbel, already named as her alternate.

Tommy Mayson of Van Nuys, Mantz' partner and third finisher a year ago, was off at 7:25½.

Mantz stepped into his bright red plane wearing brown slacks, a brown sports coat and a rainbow-hued tie—a thoroughly colorful figure. Disdaining to save the 40 gallons maintenance experts estimated it cost to taxi to the starting line rather than be towed, Mantz gunned his plane to the end of the runway. His wheels left the ground at 7:33 a. m.

Others Follow Quickly

Others followed in fairly rapid order. Dianna Cyrus, of Santa Paula, Calif., warmed up her engines, then taxied back to take on more gas. She was off at 7:45.

The second jet, piloted by Lt. Eldon A. Kaipal of Sargent, Nebr.,

Death on Highway To Enjoy No Holiday As Millions Frolic

By MAX HALL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—This may be the heaviest weekend of auto travel the country has ever seen.

That means millions of families are having fun.

It also means a frightful screeching, crashing, tearing and crumpling of steel and glass and human heads and legs and bodies.

Don't turn away from that picture because you are looking right at one of the gravest problems of the age. And Labor day weekend is a good time to face it.

It was only two years ago that we had gas rationing. Auto plants were slowly, painfully trying to crawl back into peacetime production. Cars were wearing out. Some highways were still almost empty.

Change Occurs

There has been a dramatic change.

Today the public roads administration says traffic has climbed back to the peak volume of 1941. In some areas, such as California, traffic has forged past that peak.

As the number of cars increased, death surged back, too.

Deaths in motor vehicle accidents, after the record of 39,969 in 1941, had dropped to 23,823 in 1943.

The national safety council says deaths went up:

In 1944 to 23,282.
In 1945 to 28,076.
In 1946 to 33,700.
In 1947 to what?

Americans watching the carnage—caused mainly by law-breaking, drunkenness, and carelessness—could take some grim encouragement in the fact that deaths were not increasing as fast as expected.

Deaths in the first half of 1947 were actually less than in the first half of 1946, despite the steady rise in traffic. The death rate per 100,000,000 miles of driving has kept creeping downward.

Hopeful things were happening.

One of these was a big improvement in law enforcement. After President Truman's safety conference of May 1946, many policemen, highway patrols, and traffic judges saw the light. They got tougher.

Will Be Tough Weekend

This Labor day weekend may be one of the toughest that highway law-breakers have ever experienced. The speeders, the drunk drivers, the careless swervers are more liable to get caught before they kill. Another hopeful thing is the betterment of highways.

Traffic engineers are constantly improving their science. Aroused public opinion has helped provide some necessary funds. Many—though not nearly enough—two or three-lane highways and narrow city streets have been replaced with four-lane "divided" expressways.

The "divided" expressway, in which a strip of grass separates the streams of cars rushing at one another from opposite directions, is the heart and soul of modern traffic engineering.

It is the best solution yet discovered for handling big traffic loads. And it is gradually spreading. It needs to spread faster. For death moves fast indeed.

Greece To Get Supplies Worth 17 Million Soon

By The United Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—Approximately $17,000,000 worth of food and other U. S. relief supplies will be in Greece or enroute there by Sept. 30 as part of this nation's foreign aid program, according to the state department.

The $17,000,000 allocation for the Greeks brings the total of foreign aid earmarked to date to $94,000,000. Congress appropriated $332,000,000 for the foreign relief program.

No More Marriage To Yanks, GI Bride Says, Spurning Two

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Aug. 30—Despite marriage proposals from two sympathizing New Yorkers, a jailed 25-year-old war-bride would rather embark on the broad Atlantic for her English home than venture out on the matrimonial seas again.

Misty-eyed at offers from Ernest Pierce of Jamestown, N. Y., and Frank Van Patten of New York City, the comely, blond Mrs. Pearl Baker expressed appreciation.

"But," she said, "it wouldn't make any difference if they had a million dollars, I want to go back to England."

She was held on a robbery charge in a $12 toy gun holdup necessitated, she told police, by financial needs which swamped her at the desertion of her ex-soldier husband. She has two small children, one given for adoption and the other boarded out.

The proposals, however, replaced the grim outlook, and low opinion of Americans with a rosier view.

"There are fine people here," she smiled. "I was wrong."

So, while the attractive Mrs. Baker awaits disposition of the charge against her, she can remember Van Patten's letter-offer "to save you from further disaster, I am offering you my sincere proposal to be your husband," and Pierce's desire "to prove America isn't full of heels."

Inside, the showroom is in a U design. Walls are ivory in color and the only decorative note of the solid color ceiling and walls is the unique sand swirling which gives a shadow tapestry appearance. The concrete floor is gray with a taupe rug running along the walking space.

Overhead lights are polished chrome with three circles of metal surrounding the indirect bulb. Fixtures are placed about 10 feet apart and are designed to light without casting shadows. For ventilation, fresh air is brought in through a blower system and piped into the store through circular openings set in the ceiling. In the winter, the openings will throw warm air into the showroom.

32 Years in One Spot

The company was located for 32 years in the building on West Center street. At the time the store was located there the last building on West Center street was at Union street.

The new building follows the trend adopted several years ago by some of the larger cities. The 125x100 foot building gives a floor space of 12,000 square feet.

In addition to Harry C. Scherff, president and Dwight Foreman, secretary, personnel includes Miss Jennie Eberhart, Olin Hollington, James Wallace and Donald Mack.

U.S. LOSING BATTLE TO CUT AUTO DEATHS

By The United Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 30—The nation slowly is losing the battle against traffic accidents, the national safety council said today.

The council said that July traffic deaths totaled 2,750, and increase of eight per cent over the same month last year. It was the third straight month that the death toll increased.

The upward trend was especially alarming because the most hazardous time of year is just approaching, the council said.

The death toll for the first seven months continued to run lower than last year, however. At the end of July, 17,550 fatalities had been reported, compared to 18,430 last year.

The largest city with a perfect July record was Dallas, Tex., followed by Norfolk, Va., and Omaha, Neb.

Evanston, Ill., led 81 cities that had perfect reports for the first seven months, followed by Passaic, N. J., and Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

The leading cities in each population group for the seven month period on the basis of traffic deaths per 10,000 registered vehicles were:

Over 500,000 population — Milwaukee, Wis., 3.4; Cleveland, O., 3.7.

200,000-500,000 population — Norfolk, Va., 2.4.

100,000-200,000 population — Elizabeth, N. J., 1.0.

G.O.P. Issues Booklet Explaining Labor Act

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—The Republican national committee is circulating a pamphlet entitled "The truth about the labor-management relations act of 1947," in which it asserts that there has been "misleading propaganda" about the law's objectives.

The pamphlet said enactment of the Taft-Hartley act "marked the fulfillment of a major campaign pledge by the Republican party—a pledge which won sweeping support and approval of the American electorate on Nov. 5, 1946."

Passage of the act, the Republicans contend in the booklet, "established equal rights and responsibilities for management and labor in their relationships, and increased safeguards for the rights of individual workers."

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN BUNDESEN, M.D.

Lobar Pneumonia

The man who contracted lobar pneumonia ten years or more ago had a hard fight for life. His chances of recovery were about one out of four. A good heart, a sound constitution, excellent medical and nursing care might have pulled him through but even so, his illness was likely to be long and hence expensive from both health and financial standpoints.

Today, the picture is greatly changed for the better. Pneumonia is still a very serious illness and can claims its annual toll of lives, but thanks to penicillin and the sulfonamide drugs we can now treat it with far greater assurance that the patient will recover.

According to Dr. Frank B. Kelly of Chicago, the prompt use of sulfonamides or penicillin at the beginning of a respiratory infection such as a cold or sore throat probably prevents many a case of pneumonia from developing or hits it so quickly where it is present, that it never becomes really serious.

Although lobar pneumonia is often preceded by a cold, it may have a more dramatic beginning, hitting a person in otherwise excellent health like a bolt out of the blue.

The first symptoms in these dramatic cases consist of a severe chill, fever, cough and a sharp sticking pain in the chest. The breathing rate is stepped up, and the sputum may have a rusty color. In more than 90 of every 100 cases, the lobar pneumonia is caused by the pneumococcus germ.

Dr. Kelly believes that of the sulfonamide drugs, sulfadiazine is the most satisfactory for treating lobar pneumonia. It is easily administered, is effective, and reactions do not occur very often. The sulfadiazine may be given by mouth or may be injected into a vein. The patient, in 10 per cent of the cases, may have severe headache, a skin rash, or other reactions to the sulfadiazine. When giving the "sulfa" drugs, the doctor gives baking soda three times a day and plenty of fluids. This will help prevent reactions.

If reactions occur with the sulfadiazine treatment, penicillin may be substituted immediately. It is also desirable to employ the penicillin if the inflammation in the lungs seems to be extending, or if the patient's general symptoms do not improve. Many doctors give both "sulfa" drugs and penicillin. The penicillin should also be employed in elderly patients, in those with heart failure, or in patients in whom there is any other serious condition. Penicillin is also used where tests show the pneumonia is due to streptococcus or staphylococcus germs.

The penicillin may be given by injection into a vein or into a muscle or even by mouth. There is now available a preparation of penicillin in a mixture of beeswax and oil which when given in a single daily injection, is capable of maintaining an effective amount of penicillin in the blood for twenty-four hours.

If penicillin and the sulfonamide drugs had no other uses than the treatment of pneumonia (and they do have many other uses), we should still be tremendously indebted to their discoverers. They would still represent a great saving of lives. How great is shown by the fact that over a period of twenty-five years prior to their discovery, 35 per cent of all patients who contracted pneumonia died. Many who recovered were left with permanently damaged hearts.

Since sulfonamides and penicillin have been available, this death rate of 35 per cent has been reduced to 12 per cent, and of those 12 per cent, four out of every ten were in a very serious condition when they were brought to the hospital. Recovery was the rule with patients forty years of age or younger, regardless of the duration of the sickness or when they came under treatment. Most of those who succumbed had some complicating disorder such as liver, kidney or heart disease.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A Friend: If your mouth and tongue get dry, does that mean you have a kidney condition? When I awake my mouth and tongue are dry. What causes it?

Answer: Dryness of the mouth and tongue is not usually a sign of kidney trouble. It may be due to some nose or throat inflammation. It is also possible that you sleep with your mouth open, which would cause the dryness.

"Garden Variety" Hen Mothers Peacock Brood

By The United Press

MILWAUKEE—Visitors to the Washington park zoo are surprised these summer days by the presence of a "garden variety" hen in the peacocks' pen.

Zoo officials explain her presence. They said she had hatched out five peacocks, and was brought from her chicken coop to the zoo to be near her youngsters.

Bricker Eyed As Dark Horse

Ex-Governor Rates as Second Ohio Choice with Chance If G.O.P. Deadlocks.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—John W. Bricker remains in the presidential picture at least to the extent that he's the second choice of Ohio Republicans in congress.

First, of course, is Senator Robert A. Taft. He has been endorsed by Bricker and the house members for the G.O.P. nomination in 1948.

But political fortunes are uncertain. Taft has sharp competition, particularly in those sections favoring Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, of New York.

A deadlock at the national convention might eliminate both Taft and Dewey. They're both strong men. Ohio congressmen say privately that the state's convention delegation will stick solidly with Taft and switch to another prospective candidate only with the senator's sanction.

Hope of Solons

Whether Senator Bricker, three times governor of his state, would be in line as a compromise choice by the whole convention isn't certain. Nevertheless, that is the hope of Ohio house members. They predict that the state's convention voter would go for him if he had the slightest chance to win.

The congressmen reason further:

If the convention stampedes to a candidate other than Taft, Dewey or Bricker, the Ohio delegation could be counted upon to support the former governor for the vice presidential nomination, an honor he won when Dewey was nominated for president at the last convention.

Bricker Keeps Silence

Bricker hasn't said whether he'd be interested in the vice presidency. It might depend on who became the top man.

Taft isn't considered for second place simply because he wouldn't want it. In fact, he is withholding formal announcement of his candidacy for president until after his western speaking tour beginning in September.

He wants to survey sentiment toward Republican politics, which he is credited with shaping as the party's recognized leader in the senate. He would be loath to undertake a campaign unless he believed that he had at least an even chance.

He wants his party to win whoever the candidate.

Strangely enough, she does not seem to appreciate her surroundings, and has nothing to do with her fine-feathered friends.

Zoo attendants predicted that the peacock chicks will probably ignore their "mother" when they get old enough to realize she has none of their finery.

Possibility of a second crop of cherries from a single tree is in the offing at the residence of Miss Helen Rowe of 276 Superior street.

The family noticed that the cherry tree in the back yard was almost bare of leaves a few days ago and thought no more about it since they had already picked and used cherries earlier. A few days later new green leaves started to sprout and today the tree is in full blossom for the second time in a season.

Soldier Son in Japan Phones Mother Here

A long distance telephone call from Japan was received Wednesday at 4 a. m. by Mrs. Paul Lore, of 441 Thompson street from her son, Pvt. William Lore, who is stationed with the Army in Korea. He was on furlough at Osaka, Japan.

The time there was 7 p. m. Wednesday and the call, which lasted about two minutes, was quite plain, Mrs. Lore said. In service a year, Lore went overseas nine months ago. 2 KILLED IN CRASH

By International News Service

CINCINNATI, Aug. 30—Aviation authorities opened an investigation today into the crash of a single-motored training plane at nearby Bethel which claimed two lives yesterday. Joseph Pinsomp, 25, and Delbert Beatty, 21, both of Bethel, licensed pilots taking training under the GI bill, were killed in the crash.

HER DOLL COMES TO CONCERT. When 3-year-old Margaret Rozarian Harris of Chicago performs at the piano, her bench companion is her doll. The tiny girl, who has been playing the piano for the past year, amazes audiences with selections by classical composers.

WORKSHOP

tendent of schools, were members of the Kent workshop. The Marion group yesterday, stressed essential agreement with this report.

Principal consideration of the entire program was based on a theme having to do with "Building Personality and Citizenship" in the lives of the children who are pupils in the schools. In line with this were listed the following points which were under discussion in the court-school phase of the question:

It was recommended that emphasis should be on "control and treatment rather than on fear and punishment;" and that the education and growth of a child should take place as nearly as possible "in the absence of fear and corporal punishment." This was broken down into subdivisions labled "Detention," "Child Study and Curriculum Adjustment"; "Suspension, Expulsion and Exclusion"; and "General."

Detention facility for juveniles other than a jail should be provided by every county; was the consensus; provisions of the juvenile code regarding detention should be observed and principles given by the National Probation association should be adopted; every means possible should be used to acquaint citizens with requirements of the general code regarding detention.

Early Start Advised

In child study and curriculum adjustment, pointed out was responsibility of the school to identify as early as possible its unadjusted children and to initiate programs to help them. Recommendations were on development in all school systems of adequately staffed guidance programs; adjustments made within the school of factors creating or contributing to maladjustments, on recommendation of the court; and extension of facilities of the Bureau of Juvenile Research by creating local centers where possible.

Work experience, camp experience and other activities were named as valuable in adjusting the curriculum to the child. Additional activities should be directed at prevention and elimination of the child's problems in phases of social work provided by the school or local or other government agencies. A system of screening of children at an early age for special needs should be used.

Grade Completion

An often debated subject, grade completion requirement, was considered, with recommendation that "there be no grade-completion requirement for issuance of the age and schooling certificates to children 16 years of age or older."

It was agreed the law should be followed in expulsion cases so that no expulsion of a child is ordered without action by board of education, during period between suspension and possible expulsion, school should make use of welfare agencies and clinical facilities for diagnosis and treatment, and all expulsion cases should be referred to juvenile court.

Court-school workshops were recommended, as well as exchange of information between school and court or child welfare agencies in cases involving children who require special attention, and provision of regular counselling of school personnel with organizations concerned with child welfare.

10 Points Emphasized

Quoted were ten principles which, "mostly born of court experience, should prove helpful to the schools, ...so fundamentally sound they might be termed axioms." These included the following, "Never say (or think) 'That child is a problem,'.... rather 'That child has a problem'; truancy is a symptom, the child runs away from something or to something; you can not make a child go straight, only make it hard for him to go straight—or easy; mere moralizing is ineffectual....human conduct is changed by human contact; mere threats are ineffectual; mere punishment is ineffectual; gang approval means more than adult-approval; school exists for child, not child for school; must teach child, not arithmetic, and must teach whole child; there's a golden mean between order and individual expression."

These "axioms" were presented in fuller form at the Kent workshop by Judge Paul Alexander of Kent, and were passed on to those of the worship here as valuable as working basis applicable in the variety of problems which any individual of the group might face in their work with children.

ATOMIC

was in the custody of U. S. Marshal John Quinn.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation, announced Kivi was arrested last night in Brooklyn, N. Y., where Hoover said FBI agents nabbed 37 photographs and 10 negatives when they searched Kivi's home.

Hoover's announcement said Kivi at first denied having any highly confidential pictures but that he later admitted removing from the Los Alamos project certain classified photographs.

The FBI director said pictures found in Kivi's possession showed various phases of atomic research equipment used in connection with the bomb and several pictures of visitors to the atomic property.

The first atomic bomb was assembled and tested at Los Alamos. The project still is a major center for atomic research.

Hoover said that Kivi, when first interviewed, said he had made 500 official photographs of various stages of development of the atomic bomb. He later admitted, the FBI director said, that he took the classified photographs when he left the Army in February, 1946, and that several weeks later, he became "extremely concerned about the pictures and burned them."

Kivi was in the Army from Sept. 1, 1942, until Feb. 6, 1946.

He was the third person this year to be charged with taking government documents from an atomic project.

Alexander Von der Luft, a former Army sergeant, was placed on four years' probation on Aug. 21 after he had pleaded guilty in Pittsburgh. Ernest D. Wallis, a 34-year-old Chicago photographer, also an ex-GI, has yet to be tried on similar charges.

The Treaty of Rio

IT'S an important document the inter-American defense conference has drafted in Brazil. The very unanimity with which it was drawn stands as a deterrent to aggressors. The meeting was marked by so little disagreement that it is ending well ahead of the anticipated time.

Without dictating the terms, the United States was a leader in drafting them. Not only external aggressions come within the scope of the treaty; aggressors within the hemisphere will face united action just as quickly. However, in response to Argentina's suggestion, peaceful steps will first be taken to curb intra-continental aggressors.

The treaty of Rio de Janeiro, as it will be officially known, sets up the hemisphere as a defense entity. It puts the 21 American republics on a basis of "all for one and one for all." Secretary Marshall and other members of the United States delegation deserve the highest praise for their part in drafting this ironclad treaty.

Bond-Cashing Time

VETERANS with terminal leave bonds are reminded that they are under no compulsion to cash them beginning Sept. 1. The President urges those who have no immediate need for the money to hold them and draw interest for five years.

Treasury officials anticipate that about 50 per cent will be cashed immediately but they hope the estimate is too high, for it would mean almost a billion dollars more of purchasing power at a time when dollars are still more plentiful than goods.

Incidentally, there are still more than 2,000,000 eligible veterans who haven't applied for their bonds. They have until Sept. 1, 1948 to do so.

Bee-yoo-ti-ful Ohio

THE love feast that Ohio assemblymen and their wives recently enjoyed as guests of the city of Cleveland has some curious implications.

It appears that some of the assemblymen learned for the first time that people in Cleveland get in and out their pants one leg at a time just like anyone else. It also appears that some Clevelanders learned for the first time that the assemblymen, especially those from the sticks, have heard of electric lights, know how to read and write and do not shoot city slickers on first sight with blunderbusses loaded with scrap iron and corn cobs.

Cincinnati and Cleveland should get together, to learn to their mutual surprise that the same language is spoken in both places. Dayton and Youngstown should exchange visits, Toledo and Canton, Akron and Columbus city slickers should stop and chew the fat with farmers. When farmers come to town, they should slap the town boys on the back and tell 'em the latest cleaned-up joke from Readers Digest.

Wendell Willkie's one world fizzled, and the United Nations apparently is going to be the untied nations, but if we work at it this still can be Bee-yoo-ti-ful Ohio.

Circumstances Alter a Case

WHEN it appeared that Hitler's Germany might conquer Europe and control all the frontages of Europe from which an attack on the United States might be launched, nothing was too harsh a punishment for Germany.

But when it appears that Stalin's Russia may conquer all of Europe and control the same frontages, harsh punishment for Germany becomes shortsighted.

This is the circumstance that alters the case about Germany's industrial recovery. It is being talked about freely enough everywhere else, and it might as well be talked about freely in the United States.

The same thing is true about Japan. During the years when the United States was breaking its back to win the war in the Pacific, nothing was too bad for the Japanese. There was a big bad talk about laying waste their islands and driving the population back into the feudalism from which it emerged in this century, equipped with the machinery of modern war but not the ethics of modern civilization.

But now, with the war over and Russia peering at North America across the Bering straits, it suddenly has occurred to Americans that the Japanese islands would make an admirable advanced base in the event of war.

These are the fundamental circumstances altering the fundamental case of international diplomacy. There has been a gigantic shift in international influence; Russia has emerged as the "most powerful nation" to be dealt with in the balance-of-power politics necessitated by Russia's refusal to cooperate in the United Nations. Therefore, Russia will have to be dealt with realistically (the statesmen hope)—meaning that its strength will have to be offset by the economic recovery of Europe; i.e., restoration of German industry, and economic recovery of Japan.

Truman and Coolidge

By RAYMOND MOLEY

Comparison Overlooks Vital Differences.

THOSE who are already calling our President a Missouri Coolidge should consider a number of vital differences between the two men. Never were these differences more clearly shown than in the President's recent report on federal finances.

The alleged parallel is based on the personalities of the men. Truman, like Coolidge, is measurably sparing of words. Like Coolidge, he professes no desire to be known as a superman. And Truman, too, has the good fortune to preside over a country in which employment is high and in which money flows like water. The inference is that Truman in 1948 will be the beneficiary of a grateful citizenry, just as Hoover was in 1928 the heir of Coolidge's popularity.

But the distinctions between the two men and the two eras are arresting and conclusive. Coolidge was a passionate enemy of debt. In his last year as president, the federal debt was $17,604,000,000. When Coolidge succeeding Harding, in 1923, the debt was $22,350,000,000. While national income had risen in Coolidge years from $71,600,000,000 to $81,700,000,000, Coolidge taxes took approximately the same amount at the beginning and end of his years. This meant real tax reduction. Federal expenditures were substantially reduced by Coolidge. The Vermont Yankee never failed to register whole-souled happiness when a dollar was saved.

On the other hand there is grim satisfaction in the Truman words when, after a review of current finances, he finds that congress failed to make good its promises of budgetary reduction. It must be said in fairness to Truman that international realities face us now which were not present in the Coolidge era.

But Coolidge would certainly have pointed out what Truman seemingly fails to appreciate. There is grave danger that mounting federal revenues may blind us to dangers ahead. Those revenues have mounted at an unforeseen rate. In January, 1947, the President estimated receipts for the year ending June 30, 1947 at $40,230,000,000. The actual receipts were $42,112,000,000. In January, 1947, he estimated that the receipts for the year ending June 30, 1948 would be $37,700,000,000. He now revises that estimate upward by $4,000,000,000, or to about what receipts actually were last year.

But considering that receipts mounted over the year just passed because of steadily rising prices and wages, if Truman's new estimate is right, prices and wages will have to retreat over the next year as much as they rose last year. That is very doubtful. Therefore, it can confidently be estimated that receipts will be higher than Truman's estimate by about $4,000,000,000. They will then prove to about $46,000,000,000, unless taxes are drastically reduced.

Tough Root from Small Seeds

The real danger is that this huge revenue may blind us to the real difference in substance and quality between the national income on which these receipts are based and the federal expenditures for which receipts are spent. National income is flexible uncertain and subject to rapid shrinkage. Federal expenditures are hard and resistant to change. It is 10 times as difficult to cut by a billion as to increase by a billion. When the federal government establishes a charge on the budget, priorities, privileges and special interests are created. Civil servants are added to the payroll, with legal holds on their jobs. Projects are started which cannot be dropped without serious losses. Sectional interests rise up to battle against future reductions. From small seeds there grows a tough root. Next year, this Republican congress will find economy twice as hard a task.

Truman seems to feel he has achieved a triumph by proving the impossibility of economy. That is not in the Coolidge tradition.

Enter the One-Man Philharmonic?

A new phonograph record features a concerto for two violins, both parts being played by one man, Jascha Heifetz.

Wait 'til Petrillo hears about that.

That's the greatest threat to the musicians union since the passing of the one-man band.

Yes sir, as if it hadn't provided a terrific enough headache for Petrillo with the juke-box, science has now devised a means whereby a citizen may play second fiddle to himself.

That means it is only a question of time until the violin duo goes the way of the two-man streetcar.

The new process is not confined to the violin, of course a situation which opens up some frightening possibilities. Imagine, if you can, the Sextet from Lucia . . . , with Sinatra handling all the parts.

The Merry-Go-Round

By FRANK TRIPP

IT'S TOO bad more folks can't have a merry-go-round in their back yard and go out and ride on it every night. Not for the sake of sitting astride a wooden horse rather to keep them reminded how far it is possible to go without getting anywhere.

If you'll go to the park or the travelling carnival and watch the merry-go-round for a while you'll get a glimpse of human nature that's revealing.

The phase of it that rates this attention has to do with where the man stands who gets the money.

The horses, camels tigers and sleighs that bring in the cash are way out on the outer rim of the revolving platform. The farther out you get the faster you go and the farther you ride—but when you get off you're right where you started and probably just a wee bit dizzy.

The man who runs the contraption takes up the tickets, then walks over as near to the axis, the center of the thing, as he can get, leans up against the center pole, or the wheezing organ, and watches you whirl away your dough. Meantime he slowly revolves around a small circle which neither disturbs his equilibrium nor deceives him that he's going some place.

The whirligig stops and you get off. You've ridden 50 times farther and faster than the man who's got your money. You buy another ticket and ride again.

That's swell, and a lot of fun for folks who like it. It has been going on about the longest of any amusement device that is known. So has something else that the jolly old merry-go-round exemplifies.

Riding the merry-go-round always are reachers for the brass ring; the people who are looking for a free ride.

The proprietor puts only one brass ring or two in the slot for the riders to grab. So only one of scores gets a free ride and rarely does the same person get the brass ring more than once in a skylark.

School is reopening and kids who ride the merry-go-round return to the class rooms. Among them—as among their eleders—are plenty who need to learn that there are just as few brass rings on the merry-go-round of life as there are on the one at the park.

They need to learn that he who depends upon luck may get a free ride now and then but has to pay most of the time if he's going to stay in the whirl.

To ride he must find some way to earn his nickel. He can't forever ride for free unless he owns the merry-go-round. He can't get to own one by catching brass rings. He's got to get out and dig hard for a lot of money to own a merry-go-round. The brass ring only gives one ride. It never is good for life—not even for the evening.

So kids, all through life you'll see a man leaning up against the center pole of something that he worked hard to get, has come to own, and other people will be revolving around him and paying him to ride.

Don't envy that man. Don't covet what he has. Don't throw stones at him and try to wreck his merry-go-round. Take a ride with him, for the fun of it, or to find out how he does it. Maybe he has the kind of merry-go-round you'd like to own.

You'll never get it by staying on the outer rim, where there's only frolic and speed and whirl, and grabbing for the brass ring.

You'll get it by working your way patiently, laboriously toward the center pole, the balancing bearing upon which the whole works revolves—where there's no speed, no fun, no brass rings.

Once there you'll find only work and responsibility; just planning, worry and headaches to keep the thing going—so that searchers for thrills and something for nothing can ride.

MASTHEAD OF LEGION CONVENTION

LABOR SUNDAY MESSAGE, 1947

THE relations between workers and employers,—whether in factory or on farm, in office or in store,—create some of the most important problems of our time. The decisions of responsible men and women in these relationships profoundly affect the lives of millions of people. An employer can put thousands off the payroll, a union can put thousands on the street, and either can discriminate against a race.

The Church cannot disregard the problems created by these relations nor overlook their effects on men, women, and children. The Christian Gospel affirms that men are brothers because all are created in the image of God and each is important in His sight. How can the Church effectively express its concern for people? How can it promote a true recognition of the inherent worth of each person, the right of each one to a place in society, however humble, in which he can contribute to the community while he supports himself and his family?

The beginning must surely be made in the Church itself. There must be a vigorous effort to see that no congregation is a class church or a racial church. That is not easy, for churches are usually neighborhood organizations, and people live in neighborhoods of similar economic status. But a true visitation evangelism by the laymen of the churches will make possible a congregation that crosses economic and racial and class lines. A local church-family is the place to lay a foundation of sure and sympathetic understanding of other people and of why they act as they do.

Clearly the Church must reject both the idea that most employers are greedy conspirators who combine in gigantic soulless corporate entities and the idea that organizations of employes are usually a rabble led by demagogues. The Church recognizes that each individual is a part of many groups almost from the cradle to the grave. He is a part of a family, a school, a lunch club, the round-house crowd. But the Church will always appeal to the conscience of the single person and call upon him to assert in his group what that conscience says, even in the face of hostility of that group.

IN A stable community human beings are naturally team workers. But our communities today are not stable. We have to adapt ourselves to constant change, and because as a civilization we have not learned how to do that, we feel profoundly insecure. Team work then suffers in our every day life, especially in our employment relations.

Much valuable research has been done in the principles of a society where constant adaptation to social change is required. But something is still lacking. The missing element in industry is the goal for the team work and for the adaptation. The goal is to serve God's purpose in the light of the Christian Gospel. With a sound knowledge of actual relations between employers and employes, the Church can present the community with the demand that men shall go beyond expediency, or even bare justice, and shall work for a partnership based on Christian goodwill.

It is also important that the Church should see the problems of the responsible leaders of labor and of management. It has been increasingly effective, during and since the war, in service to the sick, the bereaved, and the troubled. But the Church has not faced adequately the problems of the layman, employer and labor leader alike, who have to decide between alternatives, none of which is pleasant, each of which carries with it come apparent evil to some people. The Church today is seeking ways to meet such problems, and the help of every pastor and every Christian layman should be enlisted.

One of the serious elements in this particular field is the corruption of power. Most of us have an urge for power. Organization is essential in society but the corruption of power is a danger in any organized activity. The bigger the organization, the greater the danger. The urge and competition for power can exist among employers and union leaders, and even among church officials. The danger of business monopolies requires constant limitation by government and constant viligance by the people. Internal politics today troubles many labor organizations. That has been the problem of democracy as it grows in size, ever since its dawn in Greece.

THE democracy that we in America derive so largely from the independent churches of three hundred and more years ago gives us hope that the Church today can greatly help to solve this problem. For the kind of democracy exemplified by our forefathers depends upon our seeking God's voice to guide us in what each of us does and says, and equally upon listening for God's word in what others seek to tell us. This humble reliance upon a Power higher than ourselves and this constant recognition that others may be closer to God's will than we, have always been characteristic of those most trusted by the American people. These qualities have helped to make our country great.

The churches can also stimulate the consciences of people as we listen to the threat of the future, derived from our past experience of the business cycle. We Christians cannot face with silence or inaction the prospect of recurrent business depressions in which unemployment rots the souls of men. We recognize that this is a problem of profound complexity and that men, highly qualified, differ widely in their interpretations and their remedies. But we are equally impressed with the area of agreement among these experts. We propose to the utmost of our ability to create a background of Christian principle in which the study, discussions, and plans for action to meet the situation will proceed.

Tomorrow will confront us with new problems and new crises. We must approach the future with confidence that skill and resources are available for fresh answers which will bring us into a better economic life. This confidence can be sustained only if we know that our objectives are rooted in God's purpose. The realization of the fellowship of men under God, and the sense of a common destiny.—these are all part of God's purpose revealed in Jesus Christ. For these we must strive; out of them will spring new life, new understanding and a new unity of spirit and purpose.

Obligations of the churches in helping to establish ... maintain friendly and cooperative relationships between employers and employes are the subject of this Labor Sunday Message prepared and issued through the Department of the Church and Economic Life of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. It has been issued with a request that it be read in the churches on Labor Sunday, Aug. 31, or, if preferred, on Sept. 7 and was also submitted for newspaper publication.

Facing Difficult Times

A Sermonette

By REV. HENRY MAAG

Pastor of Prospect Street Methodist Church

"Remember the former days . . . Cast not forth your confident hope" Hebrews 10:32 and 35.

WE are often warned that we are standing on the threshold of a new age, and it is evident that we must expect to see great changes in the social fabric and in the long-established order. There is a growing conviction that the spiritual resources of life really determine its outcome. If the battles of life are won with the weapons of courage, hope, optimism, faith, confidence, and vision, then the consideration of their attainment and use is of vital importance.

It was such a belief in the importance of the spiritual factors in life which led to the writing of the Letter to the Hebrews. The Christians in those days were facing difficult times. They were in the mast of the Domitian persecution which was one of the most severe of all these early attacks on the Christians. Physical violence, social ostracism and economic persecution were used to break down their allegiance to the principles of their religion. Naturally anxiety, perplexity and uncertainty would characterize the mental attitude of a people so situated, and the danger lay in the possibility of their renouncing a way of life to which they had committed themselves. The writer of the Letter to the Hebrews believes a better world could come into being. His chief concern was to arouse his readers to their old time faith and zeal, to impart renewed courage, and to warn them against the danger of backsliding and apostacy. With this in view, he undertakes to exhibit the superlative glory of Christ's person and work, in order to kindle their pride in, and enthusiasm for their Christian faith and to convince them that the greatest sacrifices and the worst sufferings ought to be looked upon as a small price to pay for the supreme blessings which Christ has secured for His followers.

The danger in every such emergency is that men may become desperate and lose their sense of perspective, and when we do not see things in their proper setting we are apt to lose our heads and do foolish things. So the writer of this Letter says "Remember the former days and cast not forth your confident hope." "Exercise your memory and imagination for by their use you will find a way out and be able to endure until your deliverance comes." This will be recognized as sound advice for any time of crisis. By it one is fortified against distorted judgments. Following it one puts his life and influence to the service of a better day. Believing it the spiritual resources of life have far greater opportunity to operate for our good.

The value of memory is apparent. The backward look always brings with it a sense of fellowship, assurance and inspiration. We do not have to turn back many pages of history before we find experiences similar to our own which have been worked through by those whose example and method indicate the hope of our own salvation. The backward look does strengthen our conviction that righteousness, moral decency and brotherhood do bring to pass a better life for the individual and a better world in which to live that life. They have always done this no matter how tense the times and we should learn from this record of the past that moral moratoriums offer no solution for our present difficulties.

Memory is also valuable for the experimental knowledge which it releases to the individual. "Remember Lot's wife" is just another way of saying "profit from the experience of the past." Success, in truth, does not consist in never making a mistake but in never making the same mistake twice. Some lessons have already been learned and it is rank folly not to accept them and live by them. Our forefathers paid the price to learn that love is better than hate, that the affliction of God's people is even better than the pleasures of sin for a season, that cooperation is the law of life and that the Golden rule is more trustworthy than the rule of gold.

Probably the most helpful thing we could do in these times is to remind ourselves that religion offers us a hope that we can bank upon because in the past it has led men to better things with an unerring judgment. The hope of inner peace, joy, optimism and courage, the hope also of a new and better world is when men and women are willing to build it upon the teachings of our Lord and Saviour. Hope, aspiration, faith imagination are the product of religion on its highest level. The Gospel of Jesus tells us that in the midst of our defeats we can be more than conquerors through a God who loves us and reconciled Himself to us through His Son. Redemption is assured even though it may come to us by way of the cross.

There is evidence, however, that these faculties of hope, vision and faith are very much underrated faculties of the human mind. At present we see with the prophet's servant the valley filled with the chariots of war. We are not seeing the heavens filled with the chariots of fire as the prophet did. We are not courageous enough to fight for a Promised Land. We see the cross and the nails in life. We forget the One who endured the cross and the nails because He saw Him who is invisible. Let us not forget that the friendly forces which are for us are more than the antagonistic forces arrayed against us. Therefore "Cast not forth your confident hope."

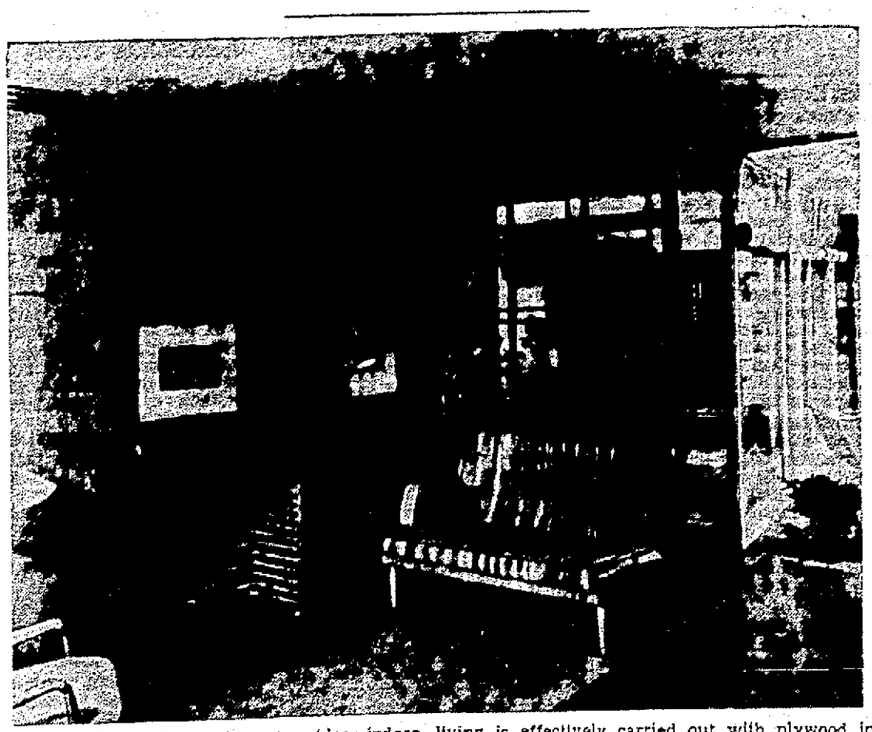
"Open" Residential Interiors Win Favor in Planning of Modern Home



THE MODERN TREND toward outdoor-indoor living is effectively carried out with plywood in this room.

YOUR HOME TODAY and TOMORROW

by W. Wadsworth Wood

Many of the best examples of modern homes are quite startling when first seen. The average person is used to solid, opaque walls in the interior of a house and, when first confronted with the light-flooded area of the modern interior, he is apt to wonder about it. It is a fact, however, that most of the people who live in an ultramodern house would not exchange it for any other type of dwelling.

Naturally, it is possible to go too far with glass and open-grill walls, and end with a building that is more like a seashore cabana than a residence. But when good sense is used in the design, the very modern house reflects an air of spaciousness and cheerfulness that can not be duplicated in any other way.

Reasons for Open View

There is no sensible reason for shutting off an attractive living room from a dining room so that they are two separate and isolated areas, and there is no sense in entering a house and finding yourself in a box-like foyer when you might just as well see through a skeleton partition into the living room which you will enter in the next few minutes anyhow.

In the first case, you have a situation which might be called stuffy; and in the second case, a situation which is definitely more gracious. There may have been good reasons, years ago, for strict subdivision of the house interior. But with the well-ordered yet informal manner of living which prevails in the average high-class home today, there is little call for it.

In the modern house, bedrooms and bathrooms are about the only areas which are enclosed and isolated. The balance of the interior space is opened out as far as the structural elements of the house will permit.

An Example

The illustration presents an excellent idea of the open pattern which has been found so satisfactory. While the living room, with its plain, well-designed fireplace is a decided unit, it is merely screened by an open bamboo wall or partition. The terrace, or open porch, is separated from the interior of the house by glass panels. One does not need much imagination to visualize the same rooms or areas, if solid walls and swinging doors separated them.

There probably are thousands of well-built homes throughout the country which would benefit by a bit of opening-out in the interior. It is not necessary to employ an interior decorator, nor an architect. If the seasoned housekeeper — who knows what she does not like about her present house—would take the time to analyze her dislikes, she might find that most of them can be overcome by the use of new methods and materials in the interior arrangement.

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSE

—By ROGER C. WHITMAN—

Base for Linoleum

Q. I have made rooms in my attic. The floor is shiplap. I plan to finish the floors with inlaid linoleum. Could heavy felt be cemented down to the shiplap with black roofing cement, and linoleum laid on top of that? Could wallboard be used instead of felt?

A. The shiplap should be perfectly smooth and all cracks filled before laying the linoleum. If the floor is not smooth, plywood would make a good base for linoleum, the panels no larger than 4 by 4 feet. Each sheet is nailed 6 inches on centers at all four edges, 12 inches on centers through body. Fill all joints with a good crack filler. The plywood is then covered with a layer of one pound dry felt, then the linoleum laid, using a waterproof linoleum cement for felt and linoleum. Roofing cement should not be used. Wallboard under linoleum would eventually pulverize. Before cementing and cutting the linoleum, it should be left loose for a day or two to allow for stretching. For best results, have the work done by a linoleum contractor.

Oil Paint Over Casein

Q. My interior walls are finished with casein paint. I would like to apply oil paint. There seems to be a difference of opinion among painters concerning the procedure. Some say the casein paint acts as a base, and all that is necessary is to apply a prime, seal coat over it and then apply the finishing oil paint. The other theory is that I must remove the casein paint. What is your opinion?

A. I agree with the first painter, provided the paint is really a casein paint and not calcimine. It is possible that the second painter misunderstood the problem and thought that the present paint was a calcimine paint, in which case his theory would be correct.

REMOVING CASEIN PAINT

Q. There is a very slight seepage of moisture through my basement walls during rainy weather, and I want to apply a new waterproofing preparation to the walls. However, I understand this cannot be applied over casein paint which is what is now on the walls. How can I remove this paint?

A. Wire brush the walls first, then go over the walls with a hot solution of either trisodium phosphate or washing soda, using it in the proportion of three pounds to the gallon of hot water. Use steel wool and a stiff scrubbing brush. The paint should soften so that you can scrape and scrub it off. Follow by scrubbing with a fresh solution and then rinse very thoroughly. Apply the waterproofing material according to the directions that come with the product. Before this work is done, it would be wise to check the mortar joints as well as the joint where the walls meet the floor. If openings or weak mortar are found, these repairs should be made first, and preferably by an experienced workman.

Finish for Hemlock Panels

Q.: Not being able to buy cedar to panel a room, we were advised to use hemlock. The grain is just as pretty, but the wood is too white. Is there any way to give it a cedar color before varnishing? I tried oil with a little maple stain, but the effect is too pink. Walnut color varnish gives it too much of an oak or brown effect.

A.: You might get a few extra clean hemlock boards and try several finishes to see which one you prefer. A penetrating wax combined with a wood stain would give a good effect, or try a light oak oil stain. If too light, use the dark oak stain, or a combination of both. Finish with varnish, shellac or lacquer. But if there is a good wood finisher in your locality, it would be wise to give him the job.

Crumbling Plaster

Q.: Our house is brick. Ten years ago we built an addition, also of brick. The lower part of the bathroom wall is Keene cement, laid off in blocks and enabled. This past winter the plaster bulged and crumbled. Guess I should tell you the walls are plastered right on the brick. Any advice will be appreciated.

A.: The plastering should have been put up on lath and strips. With the prese struction, the warm dam the bathroom condenses cold wall and causes dis tion of the plaster. The most probably an outsid wall, and takes on the ture of the outside air. thing to do is to put up strips on which to ap plaster or else an insul gypsum wallboard, to be priately finished. The plaster should first be Where the wall bulged, possible leakage through Waterproofing or tuck-poi joints may be needed.

Bathroom Wallpape

Q.: As a regular bathr per is unobtainable, can ordinary wallpaper for o room and give it a coat or other protective coating

A.: For a bathroom prefer putting up a wall a suitable design, or a pla which can be painted with If desired. If you prefer wallpaper, ask your deal clear, colorless varnish-li ing material, or else a whi mar varnish. (Shellac wo do.) These coatings ca expected to last as long wall cloth.

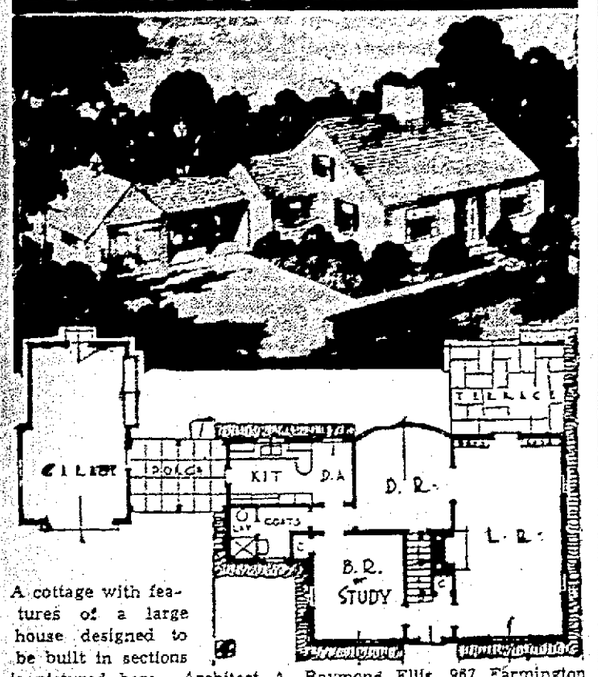
HOMES FOR AMERICANS



A cottage with features of a large house designed to be built in sections is pictured here. Architect A. Raymond Ellis, 967 Farmington Ave., West Hartford, Conn., estimates the main structure without porch or garage but with full basement comprises 20,000 cubic feet, a figure that may be used in estimating local building costs. The building would add two bedrooms upstairs with dormers facing the rear of the house.

Officer Tells How To Avoid Being One Of Holiday Victims

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, Aug. 30—Make certain your automobile is in good mechanical condition; plan your trip so you have plenty of time; observe and obey all traffic control signs and signals; and don't take any unnecessary chances.

These were the main points stressed by Col. George Mingle, head of the Ohio state highway patrol, in an appeal for careful driving over the three-day Labor day weekend.

Colonel Mingle warned that "unless there is a radical departure from the two previous three-day holiday weekends in 1947," between 200 and 300 persons will lose their lives in traffic accidents throughout the United States.

Mingle said Ohio's contribution to the death toll would approximate 10 to 15 persons. In addition, he warned that generally between 125 and 150 persons are injured over such a weekend.

"Each motorist should attempt to see he is not one of these victims," Mingle warned.

2-Day Horse Show Planned By Turf and Tanbark Club

A horse show, consisting of both gaited and western horses, is being arranged by the Turf and Tanbark Saddle club for Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 6-7 at the Marion county fairgrounds. The event is under sponsorship of the Y's Men's service club. This young men's club has been very active since its organization in improving the city parks and other spots in Marion, and proceeds will go into the club fund to be used for this purpose.

Three shows will comprise the affair, with the first Saturday night and the others Sunday afternoon and night.

The Turf and Tanbark club was organized three years ago by a group of local horse lovers. Each year it puts on a horse show at the fairgrounds which brings some of the finest horses from all over Ohio and surrounding states to participate.

Three Different Shows

This year there will be three entirely different shows with different horses at each show. The club reports it has three-gaited, five-gaited and fine harness horses entered in the gaited classes, while in the western they have some of the most outstanding western horses and ponies in Ohio already entered.

Over $2,000 in premiums will be carried away by the winners, along with many beautiful trophies. Included among the trophies will be two pony saddles, a western Martingale and bridle and halters.

A total of 28 divisions will be featured at each show, 14 under the Gaited and 14 under Western. In both the gaited and western, the premiums will be as follows: $20 for first, $15 for second, $10 for third, $5 for fourth and a ribbon for fifth. In the stake class, which will be shown Sunday, $80 will be the first prize, $60 the second, $30 the third, $20 the fourth, $10 the fifth, and a ribbon for the sixth.

All Owners Eligible

Any person owning a saddle horse or pony is eligible to enter the show and is invited to participate. Entries may be mailed to Mrs. J. B. Walter of route 6, Marion, or to Frank Foster, in care of the Houghton Sulky Co., Marion. They can also be contacted by telephone for further information.

Admission of one dollar will be charged at the gate to the fairgrounds, and children under 12 years of age, if accompanied by their parents, will be admitted free.

Nazi Gestapo Agent Captured in China After Over 2 Years

By The United Press

PEIPING, Aug. 30—Charlie Schmidt, former Nazi Gestapo chief for North China and Mongolia, was captured in the home of a German-born woman today after successfully hiding out for more than two years in cellars and alleyways of China's onetime capital.

Chinese police captured Schmidt as he crouched in a tiny hollowed-out section of flooring beneath a rug in the home of Mrs. Helen Tang, nee Gneiser, the widow of a Chinese merchant.

He was placed on a U. S. plane bound for Shanghai with six other Nazis, who will be repatriated on the U.S.S. General Black.

Schmidt, alias Jocheim, alias Wedd, said he had been hiding in Peiping, mostly in the waterlogged basement foxhole where he was found "since before the Japanese surrender."

"I haven't seen the sun in two years," he said, greedily puffing a cigaret, his first in many days.

"I'm glad it's over. I couldn't have lasted much longer. Some squealed on me, but that doesn't matter. Germany will come back."

The manacled former Gestapo man, who lost 80 pounds while in hiding, said he knew nothing of a report that he was suspected of murder. He said he had "escaped" Japanese officials looking for him in Tokyo and Peiping. He claimed most of his work was counter-intelligence against the Soviets. The Japanese asserted that the Soviets had some Germans working for them.

CHICAGO PUTS END TO SPEEDY DIVORCES

By International News Service

CHICAGO—Chicago's "quickie" divorces will be a thing of the past. After Dec. 31, it will take at least 30 days to obtain a decree.

In place of the so-called "quickie divorce mills," applicants for a divorce will have to go through one of the four masters in chancery provided for in a bill recently passed by the Illinois legislature.

In the opinion of the bill's authors, Superior Judge Edwin A. Robinson and Circuit Judge Cornelius Harrington, the measure should help to stem the rising tide of divorce and likewise protect children of broken homes.

The judges call it a "children's bill of rights" because under its provisions, periodic checkups will be made to determine if the children of divorced parents are being treated properly.

The provisions of the measure affecting children are modeled after similar programs in Milwaukee, Detroit, Cincinnati and Los Angeles.

Judge Robinson declared:

"The courts have looked too long on divorce from a purely legal standpoint when it is also definitely a social problem."

Explaining the bill further, he said the masters in chancery will hold preliminary hearings in alimony, custody and support cases. Concerted efforts for reconciliations, now impossible because of crowded dockets likewise will be made, the judge added:

"In cases where reconciliation fails, careful investigation will be made concerning fair and adequate support and alimony payments."

Little Henry Marker was riding a scooter on the street Friday. A truck driver was forced to drive over the curb to avoid hitting him.

THREE INJURED IN TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

Two Reported Caused by Drivers Falling Asleep.

Three accidents, causing injury to three persons and resulting in the arrest of another, occurred in out-of-city-traffic last night and this morning, state highway patrolmen reported.

Today at 5:10 a. m. and at 5:30 a. m. drivers going to sleep at the wheels of their automobiles caused accidents.

The first occurred on route 23 about three and one-half miles south of Marion. Driver Stephen L. Vasko, 23, of Toledo went to sleep and his car crossed the center line colliding with one driven by James Coulson, 24, of 210 Lake street, patrolmen reported. Vasco was arrested by the patrol and charged with driving to the left of the center line. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs in municipal court this morning.

Two persons are in City hospital as a result of the second accident; Donald Irwin, 24, of Grandville, Mich. dozed and his auto went off the road into a ditch, hitting a tree and telephone pole, on route 23, five miles south of Waldo. Donald suffered cuts and bruises and his brother Richard, 18, a passenger, sustained a deep head cut. They were taken to the hospital by passing motorists. The car was badly damaged.

The third accident reported by the patrol occurred in Cardington at 11 p. m. yesterday. Stephen Maceykl, 14, of Cardington was riding a bicycle and swerved in front of a car driven by Roy Newberry, 19, of Akron to avoid a sewer drain. He suffered a cut right knee and was treated by Dr. Sherman in Cardington.

Family Food Bills Continue To Soar To New Peak Levels

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—The family food bill in 56 large cities rose 1.4 per cent between mid-June and mid-July, hitting a new peak for the second consecutive month, the bureau of labor statistics said today.

The bureau's retail food price index for July was 193.1 per cent of the 1935-39 average. This was 16 per cent above a year ago and 106 per cent above the August, 1939 index.

Higher prices for eggs, dairy products and meats were the chief factors in the rise to July 15.

Egg prices jumped 11 per cent on the average as a result of strong demand, slowing production, and low storage stocks. The increase ranged from five per cent to 16 per cent in the 56 cities.

Dairy products climbed more than four per cent, reflecting short stocks of butter and seasonally lower milk production. Butter prices were up more than eight per cent, fresh milk three per cent and cheese two per cent.

The housewife paid 1½ per cent for meats, fish and poultry as a group on July 15 than on June 15. All beef cuts advanced two to 3½ per cent. Pork and lamb rose about one per cent and fish two per cent.

Yesterday the bureau of labor statistics reported that wholesale prices also continued to rise to new postwar peaks during the week ended Aug. 23.

Palace Books Double Feature For Sunday Through Tuesday

A double feature, "Repeat Performance" and "The Guilt of Janet Ames," is billed for showing Sunday through Tuesday at the Palace theater. The former stars Louis Hayward, Joan Leslie and Richard Basehart, and heading the cast in the latter are Rosalind Russell and Melvyn Douglas.

"Repeat Performance," in which Richard Basehart who hails from Zanesville makes his film debut, is the romantic drama of a woman who wins the chance to relive the most exciting year of her life.

The plot involves a New York stage actress who is forced to kill her husband on New Year's Eve. Dismayed by the problems of the whole preceding year and by how badly she managed her affairs, she asks for a chance to relive the last year, and gets the opportunity.

"The Guilt of Janet Ames" is the story of a woman filled with self-pity, who imagines herself so completely wrapped up in her husband that when he is killed in the war, she has no reason for living. Into her life comes a man with whom she falls in love, but whose past is shadowed.

"Variety Girl," a bright film festival, will open Wednesday with a cast of more than 40 of the studio's outstanding stars. The picture is scheduled to run for seven days.

Topping the star-studded cast are Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Ray Milland, Alan Ladd, Gary Cooper, Barbara Stanwyck, Paulette Goddard, Dorothy Lamour, Sonny Tufts, Burt Lancaster and Billy De Wolfe, with a great number of others.

"Variety Girl" is the story of the first foundling adopted by the Variety Clubs International, an organization of showmen, who comes to Hollywood with longings for a screen career. It is the story of how a baby's abandonment in a theater many years ago led to the formation of the giant enterprise that the Variety Club is today. The film then fictionizes the girl's growing up and attempting to carve a career in Hollywood.

Mary Hatcher, a newcomer to films, Olga San Juan and De Forest Kelley play the story leads in the film.

The attraction for the Kiddie Show Saturday morning will be "The Biscuit Eater," and a large number of comedies.

The heroes of the picture, played by Fredric March, Dana Andrews and a young newcomer, Harold Russell, all meet on the plane taking them back to their home town. March, a pleasure-loving fellow, is returning to a bank executive's job and to his wife and daughter, played by Myrna Loy and Teresa Wright. Andrews has a very selfish wife, played by Virginia Mayo, who was contented with life until her husband could find no better job than his old drug store job. She starts playing around with other men, whereupon Andrews and the daughter of March fall in love. This provides a problem for the father and mother. The third of the heroes, Harold Russell, is a handless war veteran who comes home to his sweetheart, and hesitates to ask the girl to marry him.

For the first part of the week, Sunday and Monday, the double feature will be "News Hounds" starring Leo Gorcey, and "Imperfect Lady" with Ray Milland and Teresa Wright.

Bruins Rained Out; 3 Doubleheaders Billed

Three doubleheaders in a row are on the agenda of the Marion Cubs over the holiday weekend.

When last night's game was rained out in the fourth inning it forced the club officials to schedule a twin bill with Dayton tonight as this is the final appearance of the Indians here this year.

Tonight's double feature will start at 6:30.

Terriers Here Tomorrow

The Lima Terriers will arrive tomorrow for a split doubleheader. The afternoon game will start at 2 and the night contest at 8.

The two clubs are booked for a holiday home and home doubleheader Monday with the afternoon game being played at Lima and the night game at Marion.

The Cubs got a fortunate break last night from Old Man Weather. The Indians were leading, 10-0, in the first half of the fourth when the rains came. Joe Jackson, Dayton right hander had not allowed the Cubs to hit safely and Marion had had only one base runner, Mel Nelson who walked in the second.

Witowski Shelled

Ed Witowski who started for the locals was shelled from the mound during a heavy bombardment in the second frame. Twelve men went to bat for the Indians in this round and seven runs tallied. The visitors had grabbed a run in the opening inning and two runs in the third to make their total of 10. John Edington had relieved Witowski in the big second.

Dayton batters lost credit for ten hits, a home run by Gil Goldstone, five doubles and a triple. Marty Sebastian hit the triple in doubles lost were by Abreu, Sebastian, and Del Leslie. As the game did not go five innings records of the game do not get on the books.

Richmond, Muncie Win OSL Games

By The Associated Press

Rain cancelled two games in the Ohio State league last night, and the Dayton Indians must feel a bit sorrowful today, for they held a 10-0 lead over the Marion Cubs in the fourth inning when that contest was called.

The Springfield at Lima game also was washed out.

Richmond's Roses sprang a five run rally under the noses of the Zanesville Dodgers in the ninth inning to break a tie and win, 14-9.

Bob Verrier and Manager Rex Carr of the Roses, poled four base hits with the bases empty.

Four Zanesville hurlers went to the mound, but the loss was charged to Anderson, who took over in the disastrous ninth.

Ed Post saved a 2-1 win over Newark for his Muncie brother Walter by delivering a pop fly ball to the last batter as the final play. Newark had managed to get but two hits prior to the ninth, and had two runners on base as the game ended.

Burbrink Ordered To Take It Easy

Manager Nelson Burbrink who has caught over 100 games in three months for the Cubs has been overworked, according to his physician.

He is losing weight and his blood pressure and pulse beat is far below normal. The doctor has recommended that the Marion skipper take it easy for awhile.

Thursday night he went home from the doubleheader with Dayton with a high fever. With a few days rest his condition will improve but with the three straight doubleheaders little chance for rest will come to any of the Cubs.

CLEVELAND BROWNS WHIP COLTS, 28-0

Graham Shows Baltimore He Is Still Top Grid Pitcher.

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O., Apg. 30 — There was a saying in the Cleveland Browns' camp last year that "as Otto Graham goes, so go the Browns."

Well, "Automatic Otto" is back again this season and pitching footballs as good as ever.

The Baltimore Colts, newest entry in the All-America football conference, found out what that means here last night in the Rubber Bowl as the defending champion Browns tamed the Colts 28-0 in an exhibition game before 33,106 customers.

The former Northwestern All-American tossed 21 passes and completed 13 for 182 yards. Not a toss was intercepted.

Two of Otto's heaves went for touchdowns, one a 25-yarder to Mac Speedie in the second period, and another a 36-yarder to Dante Lavelli in the third quarter.

Graham set up the Browns' third tally early in the fourth period when he intercepted a Baltimore pass and returned it 38 yards to the Colts' 17. Pile-driving Marion Motley took it from there to the one, from where Edgar (Special Delivery) Jones sneaked across.

A capable understudy for Graham was one of the items that caused Coach Paul Brown some worries last year, but 160-pound Ermal Allen from Kentucky, appears to have taken over that role.

Allen is just becoming acquainted with T-formation football, but he appeared smooth enough last night as he uncorked a pass to Bob Cowan for the Browns' final tally. The play covered 62 yards, with Cowan gathering in the ball on the Baltimore 45 and streaking the rest of the way with excellent blocking.

All four extra points were booted by Lou (The Toe) Groza.

Cincinnati Nears Junior Legion Baseball Crown

By The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 30 — Cincinnati's Robert E. Bentley post was definitely in the driver's seat today in the American Legion's national junior baseball tournament.

All the Ohioans had to do was sit back and wait for one of the two remaining contestants, Little Rock, Ark., or Manchester, N. H., to knock the other off.

Cincinnati clubbed Manchester's Sweeney post last night, 11-1, with George Moeller allowing the losers only four hits and Stew Hein pacing the attack with a homer and a single.

Cincinnati, unbeaten, on Sunday will meet the winner of today's Little Rock-Manchester tilt.

EIGHT KIDS REMAIN IN CADDY TOURNEY

Lew Worsham's Brother Favored as Semi-Finals Come.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 30 — Eight kids from Ohio, Michigan, Nebraska and Washington, D. C., were a step nearer the National Caddy Golf championship—and a four-year college scholarship—today, but only two will be left in the running tonight.

The quarter and semi-finals of the second annual clash of the club-toters are on tap today at the Ohio State university course, with the 36-hole finals set for Sunday.

Heading the favorites is Bub Worsham, blond brother of National Open king Lew Worsham. The Washington, D. C., youngster came back from a four-hole deficit at the end of seven yesterday to tack a one-up defeat on Tony Ondrus, three-time junior champion of Akron, in a thrill-packed match, and the locker room boys say that probably meant the championship.

Still in there scrapping were the No. 1 and No. 2 boys of the central Ohio contingent, John Bernard and Jim Pollock of Columbus; Hugh Quinn, last of Hamilton, O., delegation of four; Steve Hudak of Akron, who has won his matches by 4 and 3, 5 and 3 and 8 and 6 margins; Jim Dixon of Ypsilanti, Mich., a modest sharpshooter who insists all his victims have "had some tough breaks;" George Allmon, the top-notcher from Kansas City, and Ray Wythers of Lincoln, Neb.

Today's quarter-finals pitted Pollock and Dixon, Worsham and Bernard, Quinn and Hudak, and Allmon and Wythers, and anything could happen as the youngsters, all 17 or under, battle it out.

Wythers pulled one of the tournament surprises in yesterday's second round when he ousted Tom Romolo of Denver, the only left-hander in the field, by a 3 and 2 count, while Dixon defeated by 4 and 3 Slim Roger Dunn of Los Angeles, protege of Bing Crosby and Bob Hope.

In the other third-round matches Quinn needed 21 holes to defeat Don Young of Omaha, Neb.; Bernard ousted Wayne Marrett of Hamilton by 4 and 3; Hudak smothered Bill Cox of Overland, Mo., 8 and 6; and Allmon breezed to a 5 and 4 victory over Walter Knych of Yorkville, N. Y.

Davis Cup Defense Set To Open Today

By The Associated Press

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 30 — The Davis cup, symbol of international tennis supremacy, goes up for grabs for the 36th time here today with the United States a top-heavy favorite to hang on to it for at least another year by turning back the challenge of Australia.

Jack Kramer of Los Angeles and Australia's Dinny Pails, champions of their respective countries, will open the proceedings at 1:15 p. m. in the first singles match of the series on the green carpeted center court at the Forest Hills stadium.

In the second match, it will be Ted Schroeder of Glendale, Calif., America's second ranking singles star, against former Australian title-holder John Bromwich, veteran of three previous challenge rounds in the past 10 years.

SPORTS LAUGHS

The veteran American league umpire, Joe Rue, is one man in blue who doesn't think he's always right. Manager Ted Lyons of the Chicago White Sox claims that one day he criticized Rue and received a completely unexpected answer.

Lyons charged up to Rue and shouted, "Joe, what's the matter with you today?"

And Rue smiled back, "Boy, ain't I terrible?"

At 6, Marionite Wished To Coach; Now Dream Comes True

Dreams of a Harding graduate of 1935 are coming true.

Harry Winters, 29-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Winters of 1271 East Center street, decided at the age of six that he wanted to coach an athletic team, according to his father.

He got his first chance in 1940. After graduation from Ohio Northern university the curly haired local product went to Green township in Trumbull county where he coached all sports, except football, a sport the school did not have.

Following that he went to several other schools where he acted as head and assistant coach in various sports.

Now Heads Football

He is at the helm of a grid machine, which again makes the long nurtured dream a reality.

Winters was appointed head football coach and baseball coach at Willoughby High school along with an assignment to the post of athletic director and supervisor of the summer recreation program, according to word received by his parents this week.

Winters' first experience at Willoughby was in 1941 when he acted as assistant football coach and reserve basketball coach. He also taught in the Willoughby elementary school system.

In 1942 he entered the Navy, serving for three years in the physical training program under Commander Gene Tunney. Winters supervised the recreational setup and served as a physical instructor at Norfolk, Va.

Returns To Willoughby

He went back to Willoughby in 1945 to work under Luther Poling in coaching football and to coach basketball and baseball.

The unexpected resignation of Poling, recently, left the way open for Winters to move into his present postion. Poling has accepted a post with Marshall college in West Virginia.

While in Marion Winters played both football and basketball for Harding. He also was active in city softball. At Ohio Northern he earned recognition as a scat back on the grid squad, as a guard in basketball and at second base on the diamond.

When coaching in Green township in 1940 he was asked to set up a fall sport program other than football, as school officials saw no competition in that sport. His surprise move was to set up a baseball league, which turned out to be one of the most successful in the school's history.

Last year the Willoughby team was co-champion of the Lake Shore league and the outlook for the coming season is bright.

Winters is married and the father of two sons, one nearly four years old and the other two.

"Doc" Parshall Ends Race Meet with Record

By The Associated Press

DUQUOIN, Ill., Aug. 30 — Dr. H. M. Parshall, veteran Toledo, O., racing driver, wound up his work in the Grand Circuit meeting at the Duquoin fairgrounds yesterday in a burst of glory.

Parshall's Paul MacPherson, owned by O. L. Mears of Toledo, was clocked at 1:59 1/5 in the second heat of the 2.18 pace—only the second mile under two minutes by a pacer this season. Ensign Hanover was timed in 1:59 3/5 at Springfield, Ill., two weeks ago.

The record gave Parshall a total of 13 horses driven in 2 minutes or faster during his career as a trainer.

Parshall also won the claiming pace with Student Prince—closing the week long meeting as he opened it, with two triumphs.

W. J. Arbuckle's Peaceful Abbey from Indianapolis took her second victory of the week with wins in the 2:14 trot in straight heats.

CORRECTION

Yesterday's story on city softball erroneously stated that the Ohio Public Service softball team won over Quaker Oats by default. It should have stated that Quaker Oats won, as the Service squad was the defaulter.

93RD STATE FAIR FADES INTO HISTORY

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 30—Champions of three national shows and Ohio state champions were homeward bound today from the 93rd Ohio state fair which closed last night.

Fair officials reported paid attendance at the exposition was 346,229, more than 5,000 short of the 351,995 record crowd of 1946. They pointed out, however, the total did not include the many women and children guests of Monday, or the 350,000 Ohio school children to whom tickets were given.

Request, the big jumper owned by Sterling Smith of Ravenna, won the added winner-take-all high-jump stake at the horse show last night, after being judged the fair's champion high jumper.

Wins Bull Award

S. P. Burton of Ridgeville, Ind., won the grand champion and senior champion bull awards with his entry in the national Red Poll cattle show. Laverne S. Russell of Battle Creek, Mich., won the grand champion and senior champion female honors. F. E. Moomaw of Greenville, O., won junior champion bull honors.

National Percheron and Belgian horse show winners were announced earlier this week.

My Golden Hour, owned by Mrs. David Davies of Columbus, topped the five-gaited stake at the horse show finals.

Other final victors were:

Performing jumper stake: Dellwood, J. F. Anderson, St. Paul, Minn.; amateur five gaited stake, Parade of Victory, Mrs. A. E. Knowlton, Bowling Green, O.; championship three-gaited stake, Stoney Ridge Dixie Dawn, J. E. McAdams, New Carlisle, O.; junior five-gaited fine harness stake, Lady Lucetta, E. G. Ford, Canton, Ohio.

Edwin J. Bath called on the state patrol yesterday to prevent exhibitors and concessionaires from leaving before the fair closed. He said concessionaires breaking contracts with the fair this year would face the possibility of not being permitted to operate next year.

Marion Co. Boar Wins Grand Champion Ribbon

Irvin Knickel and William Willits of four miles east of Prospect were awarded a grand champion ribbon at the Ohio State fair Friday with their OIC boar. The boar was first shown two years ago in the state OIC show at Ashland when it was named grand champion junior yearling. The Friday award was the second showing of the animal. A daughter sired by the boar placed second at the national show at Dallas, Tex.

Horseshoe Pitchers Of Mt. Gilead Win

Two Mt. Gilead men won in their various classes in horseshoe pitching finals yesterday at the Ohio State fair, according to an Associated Press report today.

Lloyd Harris won the Class B round and Harry Lee Smith, Mt. Gilead old-timer, won the event for men over 70 years of age.

Other winners included A. J. Manker of Chillicothe, amateur Class A; Don Jack of Procterville, Class C; Herman Oner of Westerville, state fair championship, both amateur and professional.

The Hook family of Coshocton walked away with a number of wins. Jimmy, 11, took the state junior championship, Richard, 13, won state fair junior title and Mrs. Hook won the women's event.

Brothers in Court For Shooting Air Rifles

Three Marion brothers, ages 9, 11 and 13, have been ordered by Juvenile Judge Edward Ruzzo to stay inside the yard of their own home until school starts Sept. 8. The boys were found shooting air rifles at the George Washington school and at girls on bicycles, police said. They were taken into custody by the police at 10:17 a. m. yesterday and went before the juvenile court yesterday afternoon. In addition to ordering the boys to stay inside their own yard the court also took the air rifles and placed the three on probation.

In Austria failure to vote without good reason is punishable by a fine up to $7.

Veterans Hold Farm Vocational Meeting

Some 25 Marion county veterans interested in the veterans' vocational agriculture program were present Friday night for a meeting held in the courtroom at the courthouse.

Committee members helped the ex-servicemen fill out the application blanks necessary for enrollment and those present were listed on a county map. A map is being made so the veterans may be assigned to the school nearest their homes for the training. Tentative plans were made to start a class at Meeker by the first part of October.

All veterans who wish to enroll in the training classes may still do so by calling at the county school office in the courthouse for an entrance blank and returning the filled blank to the office.

Agriculture teachers present last night were Dallas Cornett of Pleasant, A. W. Cochran of Claridon and Prospect and veterans instructors, Robert Weiss of LaRue and Lawrence Harmon of Meeker.

450 Teachers Needed In Ohio's Schoolrooms

By The United Press

COLUMBUS, Aug. 30 — Approximately 450 teachers are needed by Ohio schools before class room doors swing open next week, the state education department estimated today.

About 600 teachers would be needed if schools reopened special departments such as home economics, officials said.

The department's division of teacher education and certification said that 2,580 temporary teaching certificates had been issued so far this year and the number eventually was expected to reach 5,000. Officials estimated that the state's high schools needed about 200 teachers and the elementary schools needed 250.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 30—The state liquor control department announced today that 18 inspectors, serving under provisional appointments, would be dismissed Monday and replaced by appointees who passed civil service examinations.

Director Dale Dunifon said that most of those being dismissed also passed examinations, but received lower grades than the men who will replace them. Among those being dismissed is Burt T. Van Voorhis of Nevada, Wyandot county.

BOY DIES OF BURNS

By The Associated Press

NEWARK, O., Aug. 30—Three-year-old Archie Lee Shafer of nearby Granville died yesterday of burns suffered when he locked himself in his father's automobile and set fire to papers, police said. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Shafer.

When women were first employed by the federal government, in the middle of the 19th century, they appeared on the payroll in the name of some male relative.

LOVE'S PERILOUS PATH

By ADELE GARRISON

MARY gave Olina a long, steady look.

"And I thought you were a real trouper, Lina!" she said reproachfully.

A hot flush came into Olina's cheeks, and for an instant there was a glint in her eyes which reminded me of the days when she was the arrogant, though charming, Princess of Transvania, and when, although she tried to preserve her democratic incognito, she frequently made it plain that she remembered her royal place in the scheme of things and expected other people to remember it also.

Apologetic Expression

But the flush faded, and the glint changed to an apologetic expression.

"I'm sorry, Mary," she said, "but I'm afraid I'm not made of the sterling stuff you are. I never was a real trouper and I can't pretend to be, especially with all this new uncertainty about Georges and Pietro."

"Olina-" her mother said in sharp reminder, as Mary leaned forward in her chair with her face and eyes filled with animated interrogation, and the former Princess of Transvania caught her breath as she realized her indiscretion in speaking of something of which Mary knew nothing.

But, characteristically, she did not make matters worse by any exclamation of contrition, or any attempt at explanation. Instead, she remained silent while Mary, after looking at each of our faces in turn, broke into voluble questioning.

Hasn't Been Told

"What's this?" she said. "New uncertainty?" Oh, but of course, I haven't been told anything, and don't know anything! However, don't you think someone of you could break down and spill a spoonful or two of lentils in my general direction?"

I rose to my feet with decision. "There's only one person who can answer that, Mary," I said, "and I'll have her over here in two minutes. Personally, I think you are in shape to hear everything, but I want Aunt Katharine's confirmation of my judgment."

I walked to the telephone, hearing Mary's comment as I took down the receiver.

"I knew there was somthing up, but 'Lina, I'm not convinced that's any reason for your not taking that role in—"

What else she said, I did not hear, for Katharine was answering my call.

"Mary is perfectly all right," I said first, "but something has come up about which I must consult you. How soon can you come over here?"

"In nothing flat, or a reasonable facsimile thereof," she quipped. "So long!"

The receiver clicked, and, putting up my own, I turned back to the three women, watching me.

"She's on her way over," I said, and Mary chuckled.

"No fireman ever had anything on Aunt Katharine in sliding down the pole at a second's notice," she said, and the rest of us nodded our agreement.

Most Efficient

"She is most efficient," Olga said. "So many efficient people lack charm, but you, Margaret, and Katharine also, radiate charm with your efficiency."

Katharine's knock on the door saved me the embarrassment of answering the compliment with words, but I blew Olga a kiss as I went to the door.

As she entered, my kinswoman swept the room with keen eyes.

"How can I serve you?" she queried, her lips quirking into an amused smile.

"Mary has just discovered that something has been going on concerning Georges and Pietro which she does not know."

"I spilled the beans, Aunt Katharine," Olina said contritely, "by making a reference to it. But I really didn't tell her anything."

The Question

"And I suppose the question before the house is whether Mary is in shape to hear the story," Katharine said with twinkling eyes. "Let's have a look at you, Mary."

She crossed with her usual effortless walk to Mary's side, put her fingers against her patient's pulse and looked her over appraisingly.

"You would like to hear the story now?" she asked, with the twinkle still in her eyes. "Or does your aunt think you ought to hear it as a therapeutic measure?"

"That doesn't deserve an answer, Mary," I said, with burlesqued dignity.

"But I'm going to give her one, anyway," Mary said. "If I don't hear what this is all about, pronto, p.d.q. and all the rest of the words, I'm going to give you an exhibition of the heebie jeebies that will raise your scalps!"
